DETAILED ACTION

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 2/9/2004 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC §103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Nissen et al. in view of EP 1 050 314 and Stockel (US Pat. 5,312,586) for the reasons of record set forth in the prior Office Actions in further view of Ogle et al. (US Pat. 6,190,407) and the further reasons below.

Nissen et al., EP 1 050 314 and Stockel were discussed in the prior Office Action and the same are incorporated herein.

Ogle et al. discloses a method of preparing a medical article, such as contact lenses, made from biocompatible material, containing an antimicrobial elemental metal, such as silver, generally in an amount greater than about 0.01 mg/gram of biocompatible material, wherein dissolution of the antimicrobial elemental is enhanced by contacting the medical article with an oxidizing agent, for example, hydrogen peroxide or permanganate (Column 3, lines 63-68, Column 5, line 60,61, Column 7, lines 54-68, Column 11, lines 21-43).

Examiner has duly considered Applicant's arguments but deems them unpersuasive.

In response to applicant's arguments against the references individually, one cannot show nonobviousness by attacking references individually where the rejections are based on combinations of references. See In re Keller, 208 USPQ 871 (CCPA 1981); In re Merck & Co., 231 USPQ 375 (Fed. Cir. 1986). Further, the test for obviousness is not whether the features of a secondary reference may be bodily incorporated into the structure of the primary reference; nor is it that the claimed invention must be expressly suggested in any one or all of the references. Rather, the test is what the combined teachings of the references would have suggested to those of ordinary skill in the art. See In re Keller, 642 F.2d 413, 208 USPQ 871 (CCPA 1981).

Applicant argues that elemental silver is what was meant by Applicant because that is the ordinary meaning. However, it is Applicant who appears to be attempting to impart a novel meaning to the claim terms. The prior art of record clearly shows that when elemental metals as opposed to metal ions are to be used the disclosure specifically states the same (See Ogle et al., Column 11, lines 25-35). Applicant now is attempting to overcome the prior art by stating that the term "silver" as used in the Specification means elemental silver. Applicant has not provided any evidence showing that this definition was intended at the time the Application was filed. In any case, the point is moot in light of the new grounds of rejection, i.e. Oleg et al. discloses oxidation of elemental silver in contact lenses. Further, one of ordinary skill in the art would have been motivated to modify the prior art as above with the expectation that oxidizing the elemental silver would enhance the dissolution of the elemental silver.

Art Unit: 1616

Therefore, the claimed invention, as a whole, would have been prima facie obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made, because every element of the invention has been collectively taught by the combined teachings of the references.
